

The IUCN Environmental Law Programme

in cooperation with

Law for a Green Planet Institute (Brazil)

and

the University of Natal (South Africa)

presents

Law and Protected Areas

Wednesday, 10 September 2003

1730 to 1930, Room 2C-4

Durban International Convention Centre

What are the legal impediments and opportunities for the creation and management of protected areas in less developed countries?

Leading environmental law experts from the IUCN Commission on Environmental Law, the world's leading network of environmental law experts, will present recent innovations in the field, share examples of the challenges in their region, and demonstrate ways in which these challenges have been dealt with. Topics to be discussed include the role of customary law in the management of protected areas, and the teaching of law related to protected areas.

See you there!
